They would promote reliance on non-renewable, dirty energy sources							[234]
All Voters.....	62	51	11	19	14	5

13a. Supporters of these new policies say that for too long Washington has stood in the way of our nation's energy independence with needless and redundant regulations that have increased the cost of energy and had a devastating effect on job production. These proposals will allow us to take full advantage of America's abundant natural resources--including natural gas, oil, and coal. This approach will increase our supply of energy at home, lower fuel prices, create good-paying jobs, and reduce our reliance on foreign oil.

Opponents of these policies say they will only help the Big Oil and coal companies that have dumped millions of dollars into TV ads and political campaigns. The fossil fuel industry already gets eighteen billion dollars in subsidies and now it wants even more government giveaways to expand fossil fuel extraction on public lands, in our oceans, and near our communities. Instead of investing more in finite, dirty energy sources such as oil, gas, and coal, we should be investing in clean energy sources that offer America a permanent solution to energy independence and would make the U.S. a world leader in renewable energy innovation.

Who do you agree with more--supporters of Donald Trump and congressional Republicans' approach, or opponents of Donald Trump and congressional Republicans' approach? *

	All Voters
Supporters of this approach	35	[241]
Opponents of this approach	48
Both/neither (VOL)	8
Not sure	9

* Asked of one-half the respondents (FORM A).

13b. Supporters of these new policies say that for too long Washington has stood in the way of our nation's energy independence with needless and redundant regulations that have increased the cost of energy and had a devastating effect on job production. These proposals will allow us to take full advantage of America's abundant natural resources--including natural gas, oil, and coal. This approach will increase our supply of energy at home, lower fuel prices, create good-paying jobs, and reduce our reliance on foreign oil.

Opponents of these policies say that this fossil-fuel driven approach to energy will harm public health and the important natural places that are our heritage as Americans. These dangerous policies eliminate vital protections against pollution of the air we breathe and the water we drink and will increase carbon pollution that scientists say is responsible for climate change. We have a responsibility to our children and grandchildren to protect America's priceless natural heritage, and to preserve our clean air and clean water.

Who do you agree with more--supporters of Donald Trump and congressional Republicans' approach or opponents of Donald Trump and congressional Republicans' approach? **

14. Next I'm going to read you some reasons why people oppose the policies that President-elect Donald Trump or Republicans in Congress have talked about for energy and the environment. For each one, please tell me whether you think it is a very strong reason to oppose these policies, a fairly strong reason, not that strong of a reason, or not a strong reason at all.

THIS TABLE HAS BEEN RANKED BY THE PERCENTAGE OF ALL VOTERS WHO SAY VERY STRONG REASON

	Total Strong Reason	Very Strong Reason	Fairly Strong Reason	Not That Strong Of A Reason	Not A Strong Reason At All	Not Sure
Our parks, lands, waters, and wildlife are part of America's outdoor heritage that we all have a moral obligation to protect for children and grandchildren. It is our responsibility to protect this legacy so that we can guarantee that future generations can enjoy the beauty of our nation, learn about nature, and experience their heritage just like we did							[245/ 253]
All Voters.....	83	63	20	8	7	2
Clean air and water is critical to the health of all Americans. Doctors, nurses, and public health experts warn us that air and drinking water pollution is a serious threat to our health, especially for the elderly and children. Pollution from power plants is not only one of the leading causes of catastrophic climate change--it leads to thousands of additional asthma attacks and heart attacks. It even increases the risk of premature death							[246/ 254]
All Voters.....	79	61	18	9	9	3
These policies are a sell-out to the same old corporate interests, Washington lobbyists, and millionaires and billionaires who know how to game the system. A few powerful and well-connected people are angling to make a lot of money, but it will come at the expense of the rest of us. We need to stand up for every American's right to drink clean water, to breath clean air, and to hike, hunt, and fish on their public lands							[248/ 256]
All Voters.....	76	61	15	10	10	4
We have a responsibility to our children and grandchildren to address climate change by investing in sustainable energy sources and moving away from finite energy sources that pollute our air and water. The longer we put it off, the more expensive and painful it will be for our economy and our families to solve this problem 							[258]
All Voters.....	79	59	20	10	8	3
America's natural areas and wildlife are going fast. In the West, we lose a football field's worth of natural areas to human development every two and a half minutes. One in five animals and plants in the United States is at risk of extinction. Instead of eliminating protections for our environment, we must safeguard our remaining natural areas and wildlife habitat so that they may be enjoyed by generations to come							[247/ 255]
All Voters.....	78	59	19	10	8	4

Q.14 (cont'd)

	Total Strong Reason	Very Strong Reason	Fairly Strong Reason	Not That Strong Of A Reason	Not A Strong Reason At All	Not Sure
These policies go too far. They are part of an extreme partisan agenda that tips the scales too far toward fossil fuels, special interests, and the well-connected. We need a balanced approach that grows America's renewable energy economy, protects our air, water, and wildlife, and that helps bring our country together around our shared values							[249/ 257]
All Voters.....	80	56	24	8	9	3
These policies are backward looking and will only make America more dependent on dirty energy sources. Instead of giving special breaks to oil, gas, and coal companies, we should be focusing on transitioning to clean, sustainable energy to reduce carbon emissions, save consumers billions of dollars, and create hundreds of thousands of jobs in the clean energy economy							[243/ 251]
All Voters.....	74	55	19	11	12	3
Ninety-seven percent of scientists now agree that carbon pollution is a major cause of climate change, and Americans can already see that climate change is creating more extreme and costly weather events, including superstorms, droughts, and wildfires that threaten communities and businesses. Politicians who support these policies are denying the science of climate change and are just looking to protect their own self-interest by doing the bidding of the oil companies and other polluters who fund their campaigns *							[250]
All Voters.....	69	54	15	8	17	6
Many scientists say that in order to avoid reaching the tipping point in the earth's temperature, which will result in severe climate impacts, we cannot afford to burn all the fossil fuels that are available. We need to keep as much of our current supplies of oil, gas, and coal in the ground as we can, so that we do not make climate change worse							[244/ 252]

THIS TABLE HAS BEEN RANKED BY THE HIGHEST PERCENTAGE OF ALL VOTERS

	All Voters
They would ignore the conclusions of scientists and medical experts, and base their decisions on politics and ideology	24	[259]
